Industry Partners and Employers,

Are you represented?

The construction industry continues to face unprecedented pressure — workforce shortages, rapid technology evolution, rising governance expectations, and the need for stronger leadership pipelines. Organizations that remain competitive are those that invest deliberately in people, systems, and strategic capability.

NAWIC's Annual Conference in Reno, Nevada is designed to deliver exactly that value.

The conference features top-tier, nationally recognized mainstage speakers alongside affiliated education and certification opportunities that strengthen leadership capacity and organizational bench strength. Curated breakout sessions address the most critical issues facing our industry today — building stronger leadership teams, advancing governance excellence, solving workforce challenges, accelerating innovation adoption, and strengthening professional collaboration.

Sessions span technical, leadership, and business disciplines, providing attendees with immediate, actionable insights they can apply directly within their organizations.

For employers and industry supporters, participation delivers measurable return:

- Leadership development and succession readiness
- Workforce stability and productivity strategies
- Exposure to emerging technologies and best practices
- Stronger governance and risk management
- Expanded professional networks and partnerships

Supporting NAWIC's Annual Conference is an investment in stronger organizations and a more capable, connected construction industry — driving better outcomes for employers, employees, and communities alike.

We invite you to join us and extend your reach while you represent your organization in Reno as an attendee, sponsor, or organizational supporter.

Warm regards,

Rita Brown
